History

S&P Sandwich Shop was established in 1928 by Austrian Jewish immigrants Charles Schwadron and Rubin Pulver as one of the many lunch rooms serving the garment workers in the lofts above.

A year later, S&P was sold to Russian immigrant Monus Eisenberg, who purchased it with shady bank loans and in 1958 left it to his sons Elias and Bernie, who changed the name to "Eisenberg's." In the mid-seventies they sold the business to Holocaust Survivors from Czechoslovakia, Louis and Lili Weisberger, who in 1988 sold it to 29 year-old Korean immigrant Steve Oh, who sold it to neighborhood regular Josh Konecky in 2006, who after 12 years sold it to the scion of an international hotel chain, who trademarked the name & ran off with it for use elsewhere (thankfully leaving the space behind, mostly intact.)

So, now this counter is under new management for the seventh time... It's us! and we are going to do our best to keep it doing what it's always done. Let's try for another century?
